Goodwill BridgePointe Stores Now Accepting Computers at No Cost to Donor
Dell Reconnect Partnership Allows Environmentally Responsible Recycling

CLARKSVILLE, IN – Goodwill BridgePointe stores are now collecting computers and computer equipment at no cost to the donor through a partnership between Dell and Goodwill Industries International™. Reconnect, a free drop-off program, allows donors who want to responsibly recycle any brand of unwanted computer equipment, to do so at 198 locations throughout the state of Indiana, including 11 Goodwill BridgePointe stores in Southern Indiana.

“Our involvement in this program allows Goodwill to encourage responsible disposal of computer equipment,” says Goodwill BridgePointe Services CEO Candice Barksdale. “Donors can get rid of old computer equipment while at the same time keeping their community clean, aiding people with disabilities and receiving a tax deduction. It’s a winning combination for everyone.”

Reconnect offers consumers a free, convenient and responsible way to recycle used computer equipment. Consumers can drop off any brand of used equipment at participating Goodwill BridgePointe donation centers in their area and request a donation receipt for tax purposes. For a list of participating Goodwill locations close to you, visit www.reconnectpartnership.com. Accepted items also include printers, fax machines, scanners, monitors, peripherals and other computer equipment parts. Donors are responsible for removing data from their hard drives.

The mission of Goodwill BridgePointe Services is to empower people with the skills, knowledge and opportunity to improve their quality of life. Goodwill BridgePointe provides services to children and adults with disabilities and disadvantages and those services are made possible by the 11 Goodwill BridgePointe stores throughout Southern Indiana, Metro United Way, Indiana Family Social Services Agency, donors and community funding partners.
